

Casey Stengel Says He Was Fired by Yanks

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel said today he had been fired by the New York Yankees.

"I was told that my services no longer were required, the 70-year-old manager told a press conference. He said he was told it was because of his age."

Topping, co-owner of the club, said that Stengel was released because of the profit-sharing and retirement program. He said the manager would have $100,000 on Oct. 31, 1960.

Topping said that Stengel was a great manager and that the baseball rules should be changed so that Stengel would be put in the Hall of Fame at once.

There was no immediate naming of his successor. During his 12 years with the club, Stengel won 10 American League Pennants and seven World Series.

The gravel-voiced manager, who replaced Bucky Harris at the Yankee helm, is independently wealthy and is regarded as a millionaire. He owns oil wells and also is a banker in his home town of Glendale, Calif.

At the start of the noon press conference, Topping announced that Stengel had retired. Then Stengel followed by saying that he had been told by both Topping and Del Webb, the other co-owner, that his services no longer were required.

"I was not offered a new contract. I was paid up in full but they want to put in a youth program as an advance way of keeping this club going," Stengel said. "I had been offered a new contract. I would have wanted certain changes made."

"I would have wanted to have known who was the boss," he said.

"My own plans are indefinite. I am not thinking about another job. At the present time I don't know what I would do if I had an offer to manage another club."

U. S. Resumes Financial Aid to Neutral Laos Government and Will Pay Troops' Salaries

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States has resumed its program of financial aid to the neutralist government of Laos and will pay salaries of the troops which helped put it in power.

The resumption order was announced Monday night in a short time after the Soviet Union had disclosed an offer to fill in the financial gap left by suspension of U.S. payments.

State Department officials said the decision to resume the $40-million-a-year military aid program was based on talks in Vientiane last week between Laos' neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma and J. Graham Parsons, assistant secretary of state for the Far East.

Suspension of the aid program was formally announced Oct. 7. It had been indicated earlier as the result of a conflict between troops of rightist Gen. Phoumi Nosavan and those following para-royal Capt. Kong Le. The captain had led an Aug. 9 coup which ousted the pro-Western government of Laos and installed the neutralist government headed by Souvanna Phouma.

Nosavan has refused to take part in the new government. U.S. officials feel that Kong Le has openly collaborated with the Communist-backed Pathet Lao rebels.

Efforts to close the breach apparently have failed, but the decision was made that Kong Le's troops would have to be paid so long as they are a part of the royal Lao army.

U.S. aid has as its prime purpose the development of a unified effort by Lao authorities to maintain independence against Communist pressures.

Officials did not spell out details of any agreement between Phouma and Parsons, but said sufficient assurances had been received from Phouma so that payments could be resumed.

In Vientiane, Phouma confirmed reports he had rejected two conditions he said the United States had sought to impose for resumption of aid. There were other conditions, he hinted, but he declined to discuss them.

He said he had rejected demands for suspension of peace talks with Pathet Lao guerrillas, and for removal of the country's administrative capital from Vientiane to Luang Prabang, where the Laos king resides.

The State Department acknowledged it had sought a change in the capital, but made no mention of any demand for an end to peace talks with the Communists.

President Calls for a Ceaseless Struggle to Strengthen the UN

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

REID WING, Minn. (AP)—President Eisenhower called today for a ceaseless struggle to strengthen and assure success of the United Nations, target of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's bitter attacks.

"We dare not stumble," Eisenhower declared in asserting that the United Nations offers the foundation for elimination of the causes of war.

The President vigorously championed the international organization in a speech prepared for dedication of the Hiawatha Bridge spanning the Mississippi River at the Minnesota-Wisconsin boundary.

Eisenhower, in a cross-country speaking tour flow here from Detroit, in the Michigan City Mall today night the President said that the world's free nations must share the burden of resisting the Red threat lest Communist propagandists "playing their piped Piper's tune" make new inroads around the globe.

In the Detroit address at the 43rd auto show dinner, Eisenhower also dealt with a domestic situation. He said the time has come for labor and management to conduct their affairs with ever increasing regard for national welfare.

"No longer," he added, "can this nation permit either group to drag its feet in adopting preventive measures for prompt settlement of industrial disputes."

In his Red Wing speech, Eisenhower made no mention of Khrushchev's tirades against the United Nations and his threat to boycott the organization if the Soviet Union doesn't get its way.

But the timing of the President's remarks—less than a week after Khrushchev's climactic assault—marked his speech as an indirect reply to the Kremlin leader.

The bridge he dedicated reminded Eisenhower of the Indian brave Hiawatha, who, the President said, was founder of the first United Nations organization in America—a confederation of Indian tribes. "That organization and Woodrow Wilson's dream of a League of Nations faded," Eisenhower added, but we must not through lack of faith or complacency so endanger the United Nations.

Henry Cabot Lodge and announced the beginning of a two-year drive to bring a two-party system to Arkansas.

Asked Monday night if this could be a prelude to a campaign for governor in 1962, Rockefeller replied only that "1962 is a long time away."

Polk singer Jimmy Driftwood, of Timbo, was one of the most outspoken "two-party" pluggers among the entertainers.

"They have a one-party system in Russia," he said. "I think two parties in the U. S. is a better idea."

Besides Rockefeller, the most prominent handshaker was the Republican candidate for governor, Henry M. Britt of Hot Springs.

"The campaign is going surprisingly well," Britt said. "We've had a friendly reception in all of the areas we've visited."

The performers, who donated their time, had played a Nixon rally last week.

"Politics is one business show people should stay out of," director Leroy Printz said. "We're here to entertain, not to tell you how to vote."

But television actress Angela Green, in a 10-minute speech plugged hard for the Nixon-Lodge ticket.

tions of our time.

Apparently sharply discounting the impact of Khrushchev's diatribes, Eisenhower said that "day by day it becomes more clear that our faith in the United Nations justified—that the system under which it operates is valuable in seeking solutions for turning heat into light, and for keeping the true desires of nations exposed to world opinion."

The President urged strengthening of the United Nations as the great forum for ventilating differences and for seeking workable compromises.

Noting that next Monday is United Nations Day, Eisenhower called for reaffirming in unmistakable tones "our determination that this time our efforts to find peace through cooperation shall not fail."

In his prepared text Eisenhower made one mention of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican candidate for president. He recalled that in 1954 he gave Nixon the assignment of outlining the federal-state highway expansion program which Congress approved two years later.

Eisenhower noted today that the new bridge he dedicated is part of the federal-state program.

The White House says Eisenhower's 6,728-mile scheduled tour into six states, some of them with major electoral vote blocs, is nonpolitical.

James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, was asked by newsmen how he squared that label with the fact that the President conferred in Detroit Monday afternoon with a group of Michigan Republican candidates for Congress and state office.

"He (Eisenhower) was just meeting with a few Republicans," Hagerty replied with a smile.

In two Detroit speeches in advance of his address at the auto show dinner, the President cut loose at what he termed "evil propaganda" in the presidential campaign — propaganda which "attempts to degrade America."

He did not specify his target in informal talks at a civic reception where he was cheered by a crowd of about 10,000, and at luncheon of about 500 business and professional women.

But Hagerty said later the President's anger was directed against a leaflet distributed in a publication of the United Automobile Workers. Hagerty said the President had read about the leaflet in the Detroit News, which described it as a document "implying skillfully that only bigots oppose the election" of Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic candidate for president.

representative were awaiting them.

A detail of state police was on standby duty at the prison.

Deputy Warden Richard Steinert said the guards were "a little shaky but other than that, in good shape."

Steinhart said the guards were seized shortly after midnight. He said the convicts apparently were under the influence of drugs obtained from hospital stores.

The uprising was staged by at least four convicts although there were about 20 convict-patients in the hospital ward at the time, prison officials said.

The three guards overpowered by the convicts were identified as James A. Ough, Theodore L. Carbone and Joseph Mikalson.

Carbone said he was taken hostage when a prisoner came up from behind and held a club next to his head.

Ough said two of the convicts were armed with sharpened butter knives.

Mikalson, asked how he had spent the time while in the hands of the convicts, replied: "I just kept quiet."

Two of the other convicts identified as participants in the outbreak were Louis Colano and Robert Pache.

Disarmament Talked by UN Group

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United States and the Soviet Union agreed today that the U.N. Political Committee should plunge immediately into a major disarmament debate in an attempt to break the long-standing East-West deadlock.

While the other delegates appeared to be agreed unanimously on this procedure, the 99-nation committee failed to reach a decision on its work program because of a long wrangle over the order in which other issues would be taken up.

The committee adjourned for lunch after more than two hours of debate. It was expected to dispose of the problem at an afternoon meeting.

Four separate disarmament questions have been placed in the committee's hopper, highlighting the general feeling that this is the paramount issue before the current General Assembly.

The questions deal with Communist and Western arms proposals, suspension of nuclear tests, prevention of a wider dissemination of nuclear weapons, and the report of the Disarmament Commission.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev outlined his disarmament proposal before the General Assembly last Thursday. The United States, Britain and Italy swiftly countered with their own plan the following night.

Both drafts call for agreement on general and complete disarmament under international inspection and control. But there are three main differences.

1. The Khrushchev plan calls for quick conclusion of a treaty for general and complete disarmament, whereas the Western plan would have agreement first on arms measures capable of "early implementation."

2. The Soviet plan would make negotiations conditional on a revamping of the U.N. Secretariat with a three-man board replacing Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld.

3. The Western plan calls for more specific control requirements.

In an attempt to quiet the atmosphere stirred by Khrushchev's stormy stay, the Assembly gave unanimous approval Monday night to a 28-nation resolution urging constructive steps to achieve world peace.

Man 86, Charged With Murder

AUGUSTA, Ark. (AP)—A first degree murder charge is planned against an 86-year-old man in connection with a slaying here.

Prosecutor Lloyd Henry said Monday the charge would be filed against John McCabe and that the state would seek to have the elderly man committed to State Hospital for a mental examination.

McCabe remained in custody without formal charge today.

McCabe was arrested after Herbert Wiley, 51, a house painter and interior decorator, was killed by two blasts from a shotgun at McCabe's house Saturday night.

A fire destroyed McCabe's house about two hours after the slaying, Henry said the fire had no direct connection with the slaying.

The trial was held Sept. 16 and began in the morning. Kaminsky said. Sentence was passed at night. The proceedings were open and about 100 people attended.

The two were released Oct. 13. They crossed into Czechoslovakia Monday. They were brought to the Austrian border under Czechoslovak escort and then entered Austria.

They plan to return to the United States tonight.

Witnesses in Vote Probe Spotlight

LONOKE, Ark. (AP)—A parade of witnesses in the Scretion-Gunter election contest in the 19th Senatorial District continues today.

Fifty-five witnesses from Hazen Township in Prairie County testified Monday that they cast ballots in the Aug. 9 Democratic primary election for J. T. Gunter of Austin, who filed the contest suit against state Sen. Jerry J. Scretion of Hazen.

Gunter was certified as having received 30 votes in that box. Scretion's vote was certified as 931.

Attorneys spent the afternoon checking Lonoke County votes challenged by Scretion against poll tax records to confirm eligibility. A few were declared ineligible.

Scretion's attorneys tried again Monday to have the hearing moved back to Prairie County, where it began two weeks ago, but were turned down. They also lost an attempt to prohibit testimony from the Hazen witnesses.

Scretion emerged as the victor on the basis of certified returns, but Gunter filed suit challenging Prairie County votes. Scretion, in reply, challenged some Lonoke County votes.

The hearing moved here after a few days of testimony in Des Arc.

Espionage Is Denied by American

VIENNA, Austria (AP)—Mark Kaminsky today denied that he carried out espionage in the Soviet Union. He said he pleaded guilty to the Soviet spy charge because he was told that would get him a light sentence.

Kaminsky, 26, a teacher from Cass County, Mich., was sentenced by a Soviet court to seven years' imprisonment, but his sentence was suspended and he was deported.

Kaminsky's traveling companion, Harvey C. Bennett, 26, of Tracy, Calif., who was expelled with him, also denied the announcement by Moscow radio that he had "denounced" Kaminsky as a spy during the trial.

The pair arrived in Vienna Monday night, coming via Czechoslovakia. They told the U.S. consulate they would leave for the United States as soon as possible.

The two men at first refused to see newsmen, but U.S. Embassy officials later persuaded them to hold a news conference to tell their side of the story.

"They told me it would be foolish not to plead guilty," Kaminsky told newsmen. "I was gathering information for a book on the subject 'The Soviet Union Talks Peace While Preparing for War.' They took my notebook from me and said the information I had been gathering on such facts as that there are soldiers everywhere in Russia was espionage under Soviet law."

The name Powers (U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers) popped up many times. In fact they said, "Powers was in the air, Kaminsky on the ground."

Kaminsky smiled often during the news conference. He said he was sometimes questioned eight hours a day.

But he said: "We were not brainwashed and the treatment was very good."

Bennett said: "I explained to the Russians that Mark was writing a book and that was why he gathered information. But I had to agree that this was not the sort of activity that a normal tourist would do."

"However, I never denounced Mark. We agreed before they separated us that I would stay out of the whole thing."

Kaminsky said they were seized Aug. 25 when they tried to leave the Soviet Union on the Soviet-Czechoslovak border.

They were detained at a hotel in nearby Uzhgorod for nine days, then flown to Kiev where Kaminsky was put in jail while Bennett was detained at a hotel as a witness.

The trial was held Sept. 16 and began in the morning. Kaminsky said. Sentence was passed at night. The proceedings were open and about 100 people attended.

The two were released Oct. 13. They crossed into Czechoslovakia Monday. They were brought to the Austrian border under Czechoslovak escort and then entered Austria.

DOROTHY DIX

Everything But Love Victorian Wife Gives Him

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: We have been married 10 years, nine of which were very happy. My husband is a good provider, a good father to our two children, does not smoke or drink and is well thought of by the community. He has never said a harsh word to me.

I am considered attractive, a good mother and housekeeper, but for some reason have never been good at the art of making love. My husband has never flirted. Neither have I. Ours is the only true love we had. But within the past year he has changed, and I am very alarmed.

He will listen to the radio, or reading a paper, I walk around unnoticed. When I talk he doesn't hear me. He has not embraced or kissed me for months. Yet he will not tell me that anything is wrong and treats me nicely. (This is the part that hurts most.) He has quit going out, I am at my wits' end and will break if our lives do not improve. I am 29, he is 32. Please help me. —Worried Wife

Dear Worried Wife: It was in the Victorian tradition for wives to treat sex as ignoble—tragically for their husbands, as well as themselves. Some wives still turn their eyes away, as though sex were indecent.

Nature takes her revenge by lying the unfortunate principals into psychological knots. That is evidently what has happened to you and your husband. No love between man and wife is true love unless it encompasses the physical and the spiritual. History gives us noble examples of what a great love can be.

A visit to a psychiatrist might help you and your husband. You may find inspiration in Shakespeare's Sonnets, Dante Gabriel Rossetti's translation of the Vita Nuova or Tolstoy's Idylls of The King.

Dear Helen:

I am 11 but even at this age I have problems. My sister, age 5, rules the household. My parents are busy in their hands. She swears and lies to me. I can't do anything about it because I get punished. I used to be popular. She's worn me down to a weeping. My friends don't notice me anymore. I am hoping you will print this for others who have sisters and brothers that are half-human, half-devil. —Weebling

Dear Weebling: The root of this problem is rivalry between you and sister for first place in your parents' affections. Just because she acts the baby is no excuse for you to do the same. Be a little woman. Refuse to let fear make you a weeping. See sister's tantrums for what they are—childish parricide at losing the spotlight. Give her the love she so desperately craves. In the doing, you will find the strength you need for love blossoms all.

This is a letter from a wife who had the courage and wisdom to forgive and forget, may help others who face similar situations.

Dear Helen:

You told a pregnant wife to fix herself up and forget the past, if she wanted to hang on to a husband who was stepping out. My husband and I were married four and a half years. We had two children with another on the way when he started going out with another woman. I loved him very much and was determined not to lose him. So I took your advice and started fixing myself up so I would look more appealing. I tried not to nag and to be the best wife I could, so he could see what he would miss without me. I didn't quarrel just talked things out sensibly, let him tell me his feelings without getting sore, then told him mine.

It was very hard but I won. Most important of all, I reminded him every day how much I loved and needed him. Now, we are happier than ever. We have agreed that whenever one of us has any gripes we discuss them calmly and do what we can to correct them. He tells me if I had left him he would have ended up in an awful mess. Each night I thank God for answering my prayers and giving my man back to me. —Happy Wife

Quiz Winners Charged With Perjury

NEW YORK (AP)—Three big money winners on television quiz shows—Charles Van Doren, Frank Blomgarden, and Blinda Van Nardoff—have been charged with perjury. It became known today they were among 14 former TV quiz show contestants who surrendered to face charges which were handed up last week by a grand jury. Identities of those accused had not been made known previously.

Dist. Atty. Frank S. Hogan said six others were expected to surrender on the charges in the near future, making a total of 20 contestants accused.

Van Doren, Blomgarden and Miss Van Nardoff all were top winners on the defunct show "Twenty-One."

Each is charged on two misdemeanor counts—giving false testimony before a September 1959 grand jury which investigated rigged TV quiz shows, and giving different testimony on the same subject before a July 1960 grand jury.

If convicted, each could get a maximum sentence of up to three years in jail and fines totalling $1,000.

The second degree perjury charges which are misdemeanors, grew out of a long investigation here during which symposiums and producers of the shows, "21" and "The Jack Dough" were questioned.

Van Doren, a former Columbia University instructor, won $120,000 on "21." Blomgarden won $80,000 and Miss Van Nardoff $220,500 on the same show.

Second degree perjury is punishable by a year in jail and a $500 fine.

Van Doren, who testified before a grand jury, originally claimed he didn't receive any help on the shows, but later changed his story after telling a congressional committee of coaching on the show.

Hogan said at the time he fell a number of witnesses had lied to the grand jury.

Elvis Breaks His Little Finger

MEMPHIS (AP)—Elvis Presley was in a hospital today with a finger broken in a tough football game with a crowd of old high school chums.

The rock 'n' roll king, home from Hollywood for a rest, snapped the little finger on his right hand while playing football Sunday when he made a dive for the ball carrier and missed.

After surgery to set the finger, Presley, 25, was admitted to Baptist Hospital for an overnight stay.

Touch football is a favorite pastime for the "rebel singer," a frustrated halfback who wasn't able to try for the team at Humes High because he had to work after school.

"It didn't hurt bad," said Presley. "I didn't even know it was broken until one of the boys noticed it was twisted around over the next finger."

HEALTH HINTS

By DR. CHARLES JOHNSON "CHIROPRACTOR"

INSOMNIA

"If I could only sleep," this statement is sufficient most of the time to stamp the case "Insomnia," and with it all the strain of other symptoms that follow. Basically, insomnia is a condition which prevents the nervous system from relaxing. Organic trouble has been frequently blamed and usually enters into the complex, but when vitally has been restored to the nerves and sufficient pressure removed to permit them to relax sleep follows that is natural and refreshing. While severe pressure on nerves can produce insomnia, the usual cause has many and the condition is one of long standing. The general health is usually affected since insomnia produces a type of nervous exhaustion which prevents proper organic action.

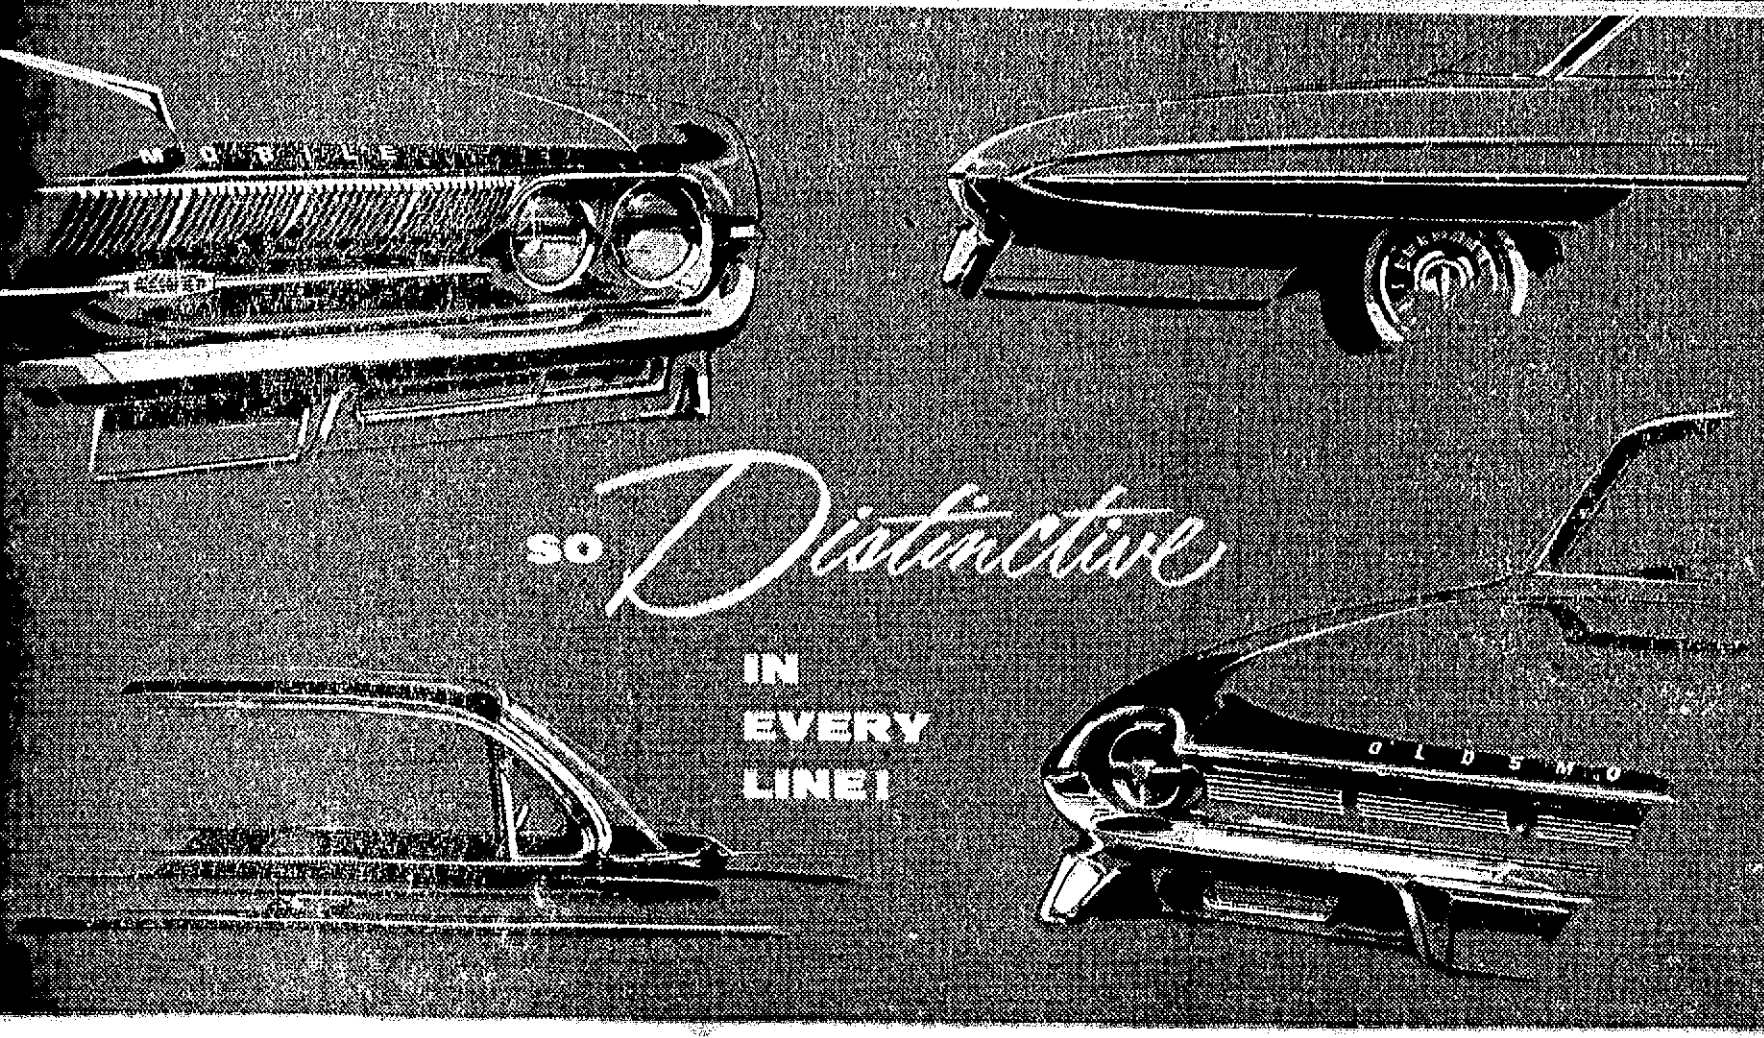

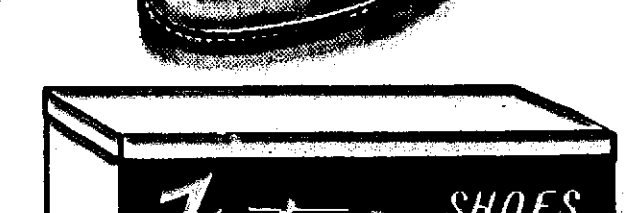

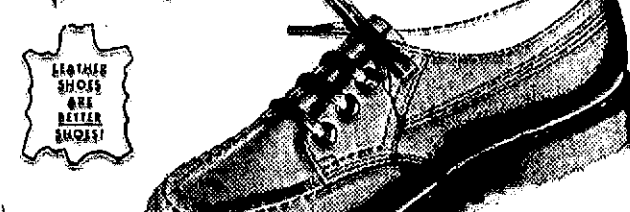

By correcting the cause the effects disappear and prove to be secondary. Chiropractic has assisted nature in restoring healthful rest to hundreds who were threatened with the Drug habit because they could not sleep.

Iowa Goes to First in Poll, Porkers 14th

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Iowa eased out Mississippi in a photo finish to become the No. 1 college football team of the nation in the fifth weekly Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

Of the 48 football experts voting,

23 gave Iowa first-place ballots and 22 gave the nod to Mississippi. Syracuse got two first-place votes and Washington 10.

In the closest finish of the year,

442-440, Iowa edged out Mississippi in the table that awards 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for second and so on.

Syracuse, the 1959 champion, moved up a peg to third place with 339 points. Navy, also advanced one place to fourth with 305 points and Missouri jumped a step to fifth with 279 points.

Minnesota, Baylor, Washington,

Ohio State and Purdue rounded out the top ten. Purdue and Washington regained places in the listings, Purdue jumping into the ratings on the strength of a 24-21 victory over previously unbeaten Ohio State, which still was ahead of the Boilermakers in the poll.

Iowa edged Wisconsin Saturday

28-21 on a diving catch by Sam Harris with only 58 seconds to go. It was Iowa's fourth straight victory. Their next opponent Saturday is Purdue.

Mississippi thumped Tulane 26-

13 in a Saturday night game with Jake Gibbs throwing three touchdown passes and scoring once himself. Next in line Saturday at Little Rock is Arkansas.

Alberty Lost to Porkers Two Weeks

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks, minus fullback Joe Paul Alberty for two weeks, today began hard drills in preparation for Saturday's game with Mississippi, the nation's No. 2 football team.

Alberty sprained his foot throwing a block against Texas Saturday and missed most of that game. Trainer Bill Ferrell said Monday he would be out at least two weeks.

Halfback Lance Alworth, who has a knee injury, was back at practice Monday. And Ferrell said guard Charles Moore might

Winners in Little League Grid Play

In Little League football play last week the Razorbacks held on to a slim lead in the team standings by playing the Rebels to a scoreless tie. In the first meeting of these two teams, the Razorbacks took a 7 to 6 win and are still holding the league lead on the basis of that decision.

The Rebels, with a win over the Big Red in their last outing are still in strong contention for the title should the Razorbacks lose one.

Wednesday afternoon at 4:30, the Big Red will take on the Rebels with Saturday night's game matching the Rebels and the Razorbacks.

Richards Is Manager of the Year

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Richards, whose Baltimore Orioles finished a surprising second today was named American League Manager of the Year for 1960 in the annual Associated Press poll.

Richards drew 111 votes from the 193 baseball writers participating in the balloting. Cookie Lavagetto of Washington was next with 63 votes. Casey Stengel of the pennant-winning New York Yankees collected the remaining 19.

The Orioles, selected to finish fifth in the preseason Associated Press poll, remained in contention for first place until two weeks before the season's end when they dropped four straight games to the Yankees. They finished eight games behind New York.

The past season was Richards' sixth as the Orioles' pilot. The team's previous high during his tenure was fifth in 1957. Baltimore finished sixth in 1959, but showed immediate improvement this year with rookie help from first baseman Jim Gentile, second baseman Marv Breeding, shortstop Ron Hansen and right-handed pitcher Chuck Estrada.

Richards, 51, a native of Waxahatchie, Tex., was a catcher for Brooklyn and New York of the National League and Philadelphia and Detroit in the American League and his big league playing career in 1946 and then managed Atlanta of the Southern Association, Buffalo of the International League and Seattle of the PCL.

He managed the Chicago White

Sox from 1951 until Sept. 14, 1954, when he resigned to accept the post as general manager and field manager of the Orioles. He gave up the general manager's job after the 1959 campaign.

The Memphis park burned last season.

American Loop Won't Expand Immediately

By JOE REICHLER

CHICAGO (AP)—The Associated Press learned today that the American League won't immediately follow the example set Monday by the National League when it committed itself to becoming a 10-team league in 1962 by granting franchises to Houston and New York City.

Instead, the American League, at its meeting scheduled for Oct. 26 in New York will concentrate on settling its realignment problem.

A source close to Del Webb, head of the AL expansion committee, said the co-owner of the New York Yankees was "gravely concerned" over such problem cities as Kansas City, Washington and Cleveland.

"I think the American League might have to straighten out its realignment problem before it can take definite and positive steps on expansion," said the source.

According to the informant,

the American League will discuss several possibilities:

1. The shifting of the Washington franchise to Minneapolis-St. Paul.
2. The desire of Hank Greenberg, part owner of the Chicago White Sox, to obtain a franchise in Washington.
3. The possibility of the Kansas City franchise being moved to Los Angeles.

"And don't overlook the possibility of the Cleveland club being moved elsewhere," added the informant. "I understand the operators of the Cleveland club are fed up. They're terribly disappointed with the attendance this year despite a 20-13 loss to Morillon, a better-than-average Class AA team."

The American League, at its last meeting in New York Aug. 30, voted to expand to 10 teams no later than Dec. 1, 1961, but did not discuss any new teams. It is understood Dallas-Fort Worth has the inside track for a franchise. There are 17 other applicants, including Minneapolis-St. Paul, Toronto, Oakland, Seattle and San Diego.

The Kansas City club, owned by the widow of Arnold Johnson, who died last March, is expected to be sold in the near future. It is not known whether the new owners plan to remain or move the franchise elsewhere. The Athletics, by contract, are committed to remain in Kansas City for two more years unless the attendance falls short of the prescribed 850,000 in any season.

It is known that several American League owners want to move to Los Angeles immediately.

Dodger owner Walter O'Malley, who must approve of an AL franchise in his Los Angeles territory, said he would not oppose such a move. But he added he didn't think it would be a smart move at this time.

Political Truce in the Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Col. Joseph Mobutu, military boss of the Congo, and Katanga President Moise Tshombe have reached a political truce in the dispute between the central government and the rich secessionist province.

Mobutu flew to Elisabethville,

Katanga capital, Sunday for five hours of talks with the rebellious Tshombe. Both men called the talks friendly but they failed to resolve basic differences.

Tshombe broke with the Leopoldville regime and proclaimed Katanga independent only 11 days after the Congo attained independence last June 3.

He told newsmen in Elisabeth-ville: "We did not reach any decision on the future of the Congo. I mean I could hardly talk to Col. Mobutu about things like that. He is not a politician. But we will respect Col. Mobutu's military administration until the end of the year. Then some form of government must be inaugurated in Leopoldville."

The Katanga leader said he was "not yet prepared to attend a round table conference of Congo leaders with the position as it is today."

Mobutu today gave newsmen a considerably more optimistic version of his conversation with Tshombe, saying he had the provincial president's "full support" in political, economic and financial. Presumably this meant Tshombe had agreed to start paying taxes to the central government again and channeling foreign exchange through it. Katanga's mines and rich farmlands make it the country's wealthiest province, but the province has made no contribution to the central administration since Tshombe proclaimed Katanga's independence. As a result, the central government has been badly strapped.

CHAPTER XXVI

It was nearly six o'clock when Cicco received Livio's note from the shoemaker. Having already had an hour's tongue-lashing from Clementina on the subject of his arrest—a storm which subsided only when he gave her Oberst Krafft's 2,000 lire—he was in no mood to tempt her further. Casually calling Livio out of her earshot, he instructed the boy to go again to the roof and put the pigeons back into the hurlap bag. "Stay there till I come for you, and keep your mouth shut!"

After Livio had left, he returned to his wife in the kitchen. "Bring me my tools and my overalls. I've got to go start a job. I'll take the boy with me."

"You'll not go out of this house tonight! You're just back from prison—in which you involved my innocent child! And if you do go, you won't take him with you!"

"You might think I'd committed a murder! I tell you it was a mistake. You heard the officer in the street—just a mistake. You scream when there's no food, and you scream when I go to work to earn it. Bah! Women!"

Clementina opened her mouth to reply, but before she could he snatched out of her hand the pasta dish which she was about to dry, and smashed it on the floor. "Shut up!" he bellowed.

Weeping, her lips quivering, Clementina brought him his tools and his overalls in a paper bag. "You shouldn't talk to me that way. I was brought up in a respectable family. In all my life I never heard my father speak to my mother—"

"The old pig was always too drunk to open his face."

The insult to her family brought forth howls and sobs, but he stalked out, and slammed the door.

As Livio and Cicco crossed Piazza Cosimato, Renzo, whom he had not seen for several weeks, called "A-Cicco!" and joined them.

As they came to the far end of the piazza, they suddenly saw in front of them a mixed patrol of two German and two Fascist police. Cicco kept his eyes carefully away from them and attempted to walk by casually whistling.

"What's in the sack?" asked one of the Italians.

"Canvas," replied Renzo. "Can't a workman go to work any more?"

"It's not canvas," said Cicco. "It's pigeons. Now the signori, figlio, Livio put one hand in the bag and pulled out a ruffled pigeon, which blinked and yawned wide its beak.

"Wasn't there some sort of a special order out about pigeons?" one of the Italian policemen asked the others. They nodded suspiciously.

"But these pigeons were given back to me by a German officer (look!) Cicco reached in his pocket for the card which Bernhardt had given him and handed it to one of the Germans.

"Ja, it says these pigeons, with the permission of Oberst Krafft of the German Command, are the property of Massimo Tomolo and that he is permitted to have them."

"Excuse us," said the other German. "Just a routine check. You may go."

"They hurried off followed by Renzo, who did not speak until they were well out of hearing of the police patrol.

"Cicco," said Renzo angrily, "you can't swear by any oaths this time and get yourself out of it. You're a traitor, and a co—collaborationist. I won't report you to the Resistance authorities because you're my old friend."

You were my old friend. I do not want to see you again. Goodbye. Renzo opened his heel and started away with a show of quiet indignation.

"What did he mean, Papa?" "Ah, shut up!" They walked along in silence for nearly a mile.

Cicco occasionally mumbled to himself. Finally he calmed down and, turning to Livio, said pompously, "Figlio mio, you are going to meet him."

"The Great Man?" "Yes, he has sent for us. He is the most important man in Italy. When the Germans go, he may even be Podesta, or Senator, or Duke. You must be very careful what you say. He is an Eccellenza."

Livio was at the door to bid him, Cicco and Livio.

"Buona sera, Signor Conle," brought the boy, as you said in your note. He turned toward Livio. "This is my son Livio."

Livio genuflected deeply and catching Livio's hand, kissed it. In his excitement he let the sack of pigeons fall to the floor.

stammered, picking up the sack again.

"You're a fine boy," said Livio, ruffling Livio's hair. "And your father has told me before. He said, 'Signorine, we that you are also a good and brave boy.'"

Livio called to Paolo, who was sitting watching the scene from the living room. "Paolo, this is Livio, Cicco's boy. Will you take him to his father's cottage and free the birds in the attic? See they have some from him."

Paolo and the boy went through the kitchen, and Cicco waited until they were out of earshot. He said, "Signorine, we that you are also a good and brave boy."

then lock them in."

"Well, come in here and get yourself sealed in a comfortable chair. I want to hear all about it. But I'd like my friend to hear Paolo's cottage and free the birds in the attic? See they have some from him."
